It is my pleasure to welcome you to the DuPage County-Wide Institute Day program! While this year's program is certainly different than previous years, we are excited about the wide array of courses and opportunities offered in this booklet.

I want to especially thank all of the educators in DuPage County who have taken on the arduous task of alternative types of instruction this year due to the COVID-19 pandemic. You have demonstrated courage, flexibility, a strong work ethic, and professionalism throughout this unprecedented time in our world. On behalf of all in our communities, a big thank you for all you've done and continue to do.

Please take a moment to review the courses offered in this booklet. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact cpl@dupageroe.org or dupageroe.org.

Enjoy the day, and again, thank you for all you do!

SESSION TITLE: A Mindset for Culturally Relevant Teaching

SUMMARY: You've decided to engage in culturally responsive teaching, but you're probably wondering what that will look like in your classroom. If you're like most teachers, you want some clarity. You want strategies. You want tools. But before identifying strategies and tools, it's important to develop mindsets that allow you to do the work.

SESSION TITLE: Attainable Sustainables

SUMMARY: Submerge yourself for a day in the dynamic world of sustainability. We will spend the day diving into various environmental issues we face in our community, and the role sustainable solutions can play in solving these problems. Learn ways to protect our water, conserve energy, improve our soil and preserve our natural resources. Additionally, you will explore emerging careers in the field of sustainability. This is a fast-paced STEM workshop that is jam-packed with resources, hands-on activities, ideas for the classroom that are adaptable to both in-person and virtual settings, as well as multiple age groups and aligns with NGSS. It will be a combination of live presentations, peer collaboration, interactive discussions and guided virtual tours at relevant DuPage County locations not always open to the public. The tours, led by environmental professionals, will highlight green infrastructure and special processes currently in place to protect and conserve our precious. Recommended for all grade levels, this engaging workshop will answer many environmental questions, encourage deeper exploration of environmental topics and provide practical and personal connections for both students and educators with the world around us.

SESSION TITLE: Building Resilience in Our Remote Learners

SUMMARY: This engaging presentation impacts school climate/culture which has a direct impact on instruction. These are unprecedented times. Now more than ever, educators need to understand the role of self care in building resilience in themselves and in their students. Educators have the ability to mitigate the impact of the pandemic on their students while teaching their curriculum. Specific strategies for use in an in-person or remote classroom across all content areas and grade levels will be shared.

SESSION TITLE: Counting on Trees for Student Learning: Tree Census Overview/Activities and Virtual Learning Resources for Using Nature this school year from The Morton Arboretum

SUMMARY: This year we are counting trees, but trees are also counting on you and your students! Learn more about The Arboretum's 2020 Tree Census Project, as well as find ways your students can get involved in measuring trees in your community, or in their backyard. Additionally, we will share new virtual resources developed to bring nature to your students in remote, or hybrid formats. Our newly launched virtual bundles and outreach programs, aligned to the Next Generation Science Standards, equip you and your students to explore the nature in your own neighborhoods.

SESSION TITLE: Culturally Responsive Social Emotional Learning Amid COVID-19 and Racial Violence

SUMMARY: While social emotional learning (SEL) has become widespread internationally, popular SEL programs and traditional supports completely ignore the lived experiences of students of color and do not integrate their cultural values, community practices, or lived experiences when developing social emotional competencies. To this end, scholars argue that SEL programs that are not culturally responsive likely contribute to inequity in the classroom. The purpose of this session is fourfold: 1. to reveal four cultural values that have been shown to boost engagement among culturally diverse learners; 2. to describe how to pair culturally responsive and sustaining principles with SEL instruction; 3. to provide guidance on exactly how to design culturally sustaining SEL lessons across subjects and grade levels; and 4. to demonstrate culturally sustaining SEL activities for both the remote and traditional classroom setting. Considering the current COVID-19 pandemic, paired with racial violence toward African Americans, it is even more critical that SEL supports place the experiences of students of color at the center of instruction. By the end of this session, all participants will recognize culturally responsive and sustaining teaching principles, recognize how to modify current practices in order to make them culturally responsive, identify how to design culturally responsive SEL activities across grade-level and subjects, identify how traditional supports and special education evaluation practices contribute to disproportionate special, and education placement among students of color. This session will provide participants with culturally sustaining tools and strategies to use in the classroom immediately!

SESSION TITLE:	DuPage County Social Studies Conference
SUMMARY:	Each year, the DCSSC offers over 25 different sessions that provide professional development opportunities for middle school and high school teachers in the areas of curriculum, assessment, and instruction. The conference brings together university professors, experts in the field, and community activists to present on relevant content and pedagogical/methodology topics that teachers can apply to their own classrooms. All topics align to either Common Core, College Board, ISBE, and/or local district curricular standards while addressing current trends in Social Studies education. Many topics are based on feedback provided by area teachers who have attended the conference the previous year. The conference offers teachers an opportunity to attend five different sessions, ranging from keynote speakers to teacher round tables. During registration, teachers will be able to select from a variety of topics that will allow them to tailor their institute based on individual and district needs. It also provides an opportunity for teachers to view current resources from major publishers and non-for-profit organizations.

SESSION TITLE 1:	Teaching the Holocaust, Empowering Students
SUMMARY:	It is mandated to teach the Holocaust in Illinois. This professional development session examines primary sources, first person testimony, and responsible pedagogy to use the Echoes & Reflections curriculum to satisfy the requirement of teaching the Holocaust. A recent study showed increased empathy, tolerance, and open-mindedness in college students who had Holocaust education in high school, especially if it included first person testimony, including video testimony which is a staple of Echoes & Reflections. Students will benefit from informed teachers who will be able to use the model lessons presented in the professional development session to inform students as well as spark curiosity and drive further student involvement in the study of the Holocaust. Our extensive monitoring and evaluation standards have shown an over 90% success rate to boost teacher knowledge, capabilities, and student learning.
SESSION TITLE 2:	Spotlight on Contemporary Antisemitism
SUMMARY:	How do we help students understand that antisemitism did not begin nor end with the Holocaust? What do students need to know in order to recognize antisemitism today and to stand up to antisemitism and other forms of hate? Read the news and it is clear: antisemitism is not a relic of the past, but a hatred the world struggles with today. It is important that educators have the resources and tools to feel prepared to talk about contemporary manifestations of antisemitism and hate with students. This learning opportunity explores classroom materials to support effective teaching of contemporary antisemitism, its global reach, and its expression in the form of hate speech, violence, denial, and distortion of the Holocaust. Educators will also explore ways to support students' commitment and ability to actively respond to and prevent antisemitism and other forms of prejudice in their communities.

SESSION TITLE: Engaging Student Voice in Trauma Informed Practices

SUMMARY: This session will impact school climate/culture by training educators and staff in best practices for centering the leadership development of students. During this session participants will learn a framework and practice that combines student agency and restorative practices as vehicles for engaging the whole student, not just their cognitive ability and/or academic success. Vast research has demonstrated the barriers that are present in the trauma brain when it comes to learning in traditional schooling. Trauma-informed practices are not only essential to classroom teachers, but also for the communities young people find themselves in. Participants will explore Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACE) to develop a professional understanding of the experienced trauma. The session is designed as an experiential experience that models the instruction and impact of incorporating student voice through the trauma informed lens.

SESSION TITLE 1:	Courageous Conversations: Building a Positive Classroom
SUMMARY:	The Courageous Conversation workshop prepares educators to create positive classroom atmospheres where challenging and productive conversations around topics such as racism, antisemitism, bias, can happen. Educators will collaborate on best practices to construct an environment of respect and rapport. Participants will leave with a toolkit to implement into their classroom.
SESSION TITLE 2:	How Far is Too Far? Holocaust Education in Middle Grade Classrooms
SUMMARY:	A study of the Holocaust is a complex undertaking. Students must be ready not only intellectually but also emotionally to understand the causes, events, and consequences of this chapter in history. In this workshop, participants will identify strategies for approaching the subject through the lenses of character education, social emotional learning, and civic engagement. The workshop will provide educators with a framework on which students may construct meaning and begin to understand the historical context of the people, places, and events of the Holocaust by citing evidence, developing logical arguments, and synthesizing information drawn from multiple sources. Participants will also examine high-quality, age-appropriate resources and gather tools to create a meaningful introduction to the Holocaust at the 5th and 6th grade level.
SESSION TITLE 3:	Diaries and Memoirs: Using Primary Sources to Teach the Holocaust
SUMMARY:	As educators, we strive to give the past meaning for our students. Diaries and memoirs are essential tools in teaching the Holocaust, helping our students to develop both a historical and a human understanding of this complex history. This session will provide an overview of how to use these invaluable primary source records in your classroom and provide strategies and approaches to incorporate into your curriculum. Teachers will also receive an introduction to the resources of Illinois Holocaust Museum & Education Center for both educators and students.
SESSION TITLE 4:	Introduction to the History of Genocide
SUMMARY:	In this workshop, educators will take a deeper look into their rationale for teaching genocide. Participants will examine the guidelines of teaching genocide, including how to define the term, and discuss the challenges of its legal definition. Together, educators will explore the Illinois Holocaust Museum's new Genocide and Human Rights Virtual Teaching Trunk to help them effectively teach the origins of genocide and learn how to implement age-appropriate classroom activities into their genocide unit.

SESSION TITLE: Life Science Institute 2021

SUMMARY: Participants will be learning about phenomenon-driven storyline units in order to satisfy the three-dimensional nature of the Illinois Learning Standards for Science (NGSS). Teachers who attend will take part in activities that expose them to model units that illustrate effective NGSS implementation. Participants will be analyzing curricular planning methods, observing examples of the shifts from content-driven to phenomenon-driven instruction, and applying these concepts to the creation of coherent NGSS storyline units. Teachers will be exposed to model storyline units that have been piloted in Illinois classrooms to better understand the nature of the fundamental shift required by the Framework for K-12 Science Education. Student learning will be greatly improved due to the implementation of the NGSS as it will lead teachers to create more coherent instruction by taking core ideas, science practices and cross-cutting concepts into account, while building understanding around real world phenomena. As a result, teachers will act more as facilitators of learning and create a student-centered, student-driven classroom experience.

SESSION TITLE: SEL for the Sake of Equity, A Pandemic Imperative

SUMMARY: As we began this year, few could imagine the present reality with COVID and the present national reckoning on racial injustice. While all communities face some challenges stemming from these crises, those systemically marginalized communities bear a significant weight with regards to health, economic, and social trauma. More than ever, building healthy learning environments demands social emotional learning initiatives that are grounded in equity and inclusion and this can only be achieved with intentionality. This session will examine best practices in social emotional learning, identify and analyze theories of obstruction in ensuring practices work for all learners, and plan actions to ensure approaches achieve equity and inclusion goals. In the process, our goal will be to identify what type of school and classroom conditions, instruction, and leadership are necessary for social emotional learning to succeed for all learners.

SESSION TITLE: SERVE, VERVE, OBSERVE Your Way to Culturally Responsive Teaching: Tips, Tricks, and Tweaks to Reach Marginalized Students

SUMMARY: In this informative and interactive session, participants will use a 3 step framework to tweak their classroom practices to become more culturally responsive educators. In part 1, SERVE, participants will learn how to move beyond cultural fairs and cultural celebrations to integrate culturally relevant content into their curriculum that truly connects with learners' identities and experiences, thus improving overall school climate. In part 2, VERVE, participants will learn how to tweak the way they deliver lessons to engage students from communal cultures in order to do academically rigorous work. Participants will even practice some of these strategies in an online environment and view videos of what that instruction can look like in the classroom. Not only will these tweaks improve instruction for all students, it is a key factor in closing the academic achievement gap. The final part of this session, OBSERVE, will explain how to use teacher observations to develop learning ally-ships with students, as well as how to leverage observations of students to choose the right culturally responsive teaching pedagogy for each student. At the heart of culturally responsive teaching is learning how to be responsive. Educators will also learn how to differentiate between deviant behaviors and cultural behaviors which are often mislabeled. To keep participants engaged through the PD, breakout rooms, polls, games, videos, humor, discussions, and other interactive tools will be utilized to share this researched-backed content. All participants will walk away with printable resources and ideas which can be implemented the very next day!

SESSION TITLE: Understanding Racial Equity Impact Assessments

SUMMARY: How do our actions as individuals and institutions maintain systemic racism? What roles do school culture and systems play in mitigating or exacerbating inequities? How can we work to build more equitable policies and processes? This workshop identifies forms of racism and prepares participants to diagnose problems and pinpoint where interventions are needed and prepares school leaders to identify where it is appropriate to apply the Racial Equity Impact Assessment (REIA) process to support school improvement planning.

Workshop participants will explore and compare definitions of equity, examine the impacts of structural racialization, define and distinguish forms of racism, review the history and development of REIA as a tool and practice, analyze case studies of REIA application, and engage in a simulated REIA.

SESSION TITLE: ABC123 Working with Students with Autism

DESCRTION: Students with autism have many strengths and a distinctive learning style. A multidisciplinary team is necessary to help students with autism learn strategies to acquire new skills and become part of your class. Visual schedules, social stories, structure, routine, and communication will be explored during this session. The ability to take unique characteristics such as imagination, honesty, interest to details, and direct responses and support students in an environment of trust and exploration to develop a strong foundation at the beginning of their academic adventure will be explored.

PRESENTERS: Alysse Cepeda and Emma Harris

AUDIENCE: All Staff, Early Childhood Teachers and Staff

SESSION TITLE: Bringing Your WHY Back to YOU!

DESCRTION: We all get lost along the way, and right now, more than ever, we need to remember WHY we got into this important work of public education. Join us for a fun, fast, and inspiring session to rejuvenate and remember why you got into education in the first place!

PRESENTER: Dr. Courtney Orzel

AUDIENCE: All Staff

SESSION TITLE: Broadening Your Lens: Embracing Culture and Diversity in your Learning Environment - Session 1: Defining Culture, Session 2: Social Identity, Session 3: Promoting Diversity in the Classroom

DESCRTION: As early childhood educators it is our responsibility to support consistently warm, caring, and culturally responsive relationships. If our learning environments do not reflect and validate the families and their cultural identities, children may feel invisible, unimportant and ashamed of who they are. During the Broadening your Lens series we will explore defining culture, your social identity, promoting diversity in the learning environment, and culturally responsive relationships with families.

PRESENTERS: Casey Craft-Cortes, Whitney Bieber, Jennifer Robertson

AUDIENCE: Teachers, Administrators

SESSION TITLE: Creating Engaging and Accessible Learning Experiences through Google Slides

DESCRTION: By thinking outside the box, teachers can use Google Slides to create interactive and engaging learning experiences. Join us as we present examples and templates including accessible books and reading activities, manipulatives, drag and drop activities, choice boards, therapy activities, reading recordings, and embedded formative assessments.

PRESENTERS: Sandy Chiampas and Ellen Deutsch

AUDIENCE: All Staff

SESSION TITLE: Doing More with Google Slides, Docs and Forms

DESCRTION: During our time together, we will explore how Google Slides, Docs and Forms can benefit your workflow, help to create engaging lessons, increase collaboration and more.

PRESENTER: Stacey McCarthy

AUDIENCE: Teachers, Speech and Language Pathologist, Social Workers, Psychologists, Occupational Therapist, Physical Therapist

SESSION TITLE: Extending Children's Thinking: Using Bloom's Taxonomy to Support Higher Level Questions

DESCRTION: In this interactive webinar you will learn how to "step up" your questioning techniques by utilizing stages of questions based on Bloom's Taxonomy to extend children's thinking as you engage with them in the classroom environment and through the daily routine. The amount of words as well as the number of back and forth exchanges in conversation children are exposed to at a young age boosts brain development. With some practice using higher level questions, we can pave the way for children to think about and express more complex ideas.

PRESENTER: Katie Suchy

AUDIENCE: All Staff

SESSION TITLE: From a Distance: Practical Strategies in Authentic Assessment for Preschoolers in the Time of Covid

DESCRTION: Our young preschoolers have experienced many changes to school as they know it in particularly when teaching teams are providing instruction virtually. What has not changed is the need for formative assessment to collect authentic observations in a systematic way to understand a child's knowledge, skills and abilities. This session will highlight practical ways in which teaching teams can gather formative assessment information during this time of changing school environments to assist them in understanding their students' strengths and needs, identify progress towards learning goals and measure progress on child outcomes.

PRESENTER: Nancy Kind

AUDIENCE: Teachers, Speech and Language Pathologist, Social Workers, Psychologists, Occupational Therapist, Physical Therapist

SESSION TITLE: Incorporating STEM Skills into Anything!

DESCRTION: Science, Technology, Engineering and Math are part of just about everything we do. Learn how to frame STEM activities as a set of skills children can practice and develop to encourage a growth mindset.

PRESENTER: Brett Nicholas

AUDIENCE: Teachers

SESSION TITLE: Mindfulness and Yoga

DESCRTION: The practice of Yoga and Mindfulness eases stress, decreases anxiety, and enhances positive energy helping adults and children navigate challenging times. This presentation will be broken down into 2 sessions: a beginner adult-centered practice and a preschool/child -centered practice. In addition, hand-outs, video clips, and mindfulness strategies will be shared electronically.

PRESENTER: Eileen Rydel-Boesso

AUDIENCE: All Staff, Teachers, Administrators, Speech and Language Pathologist, Social Workers, Psychologists, Occupational Therapist, Physical Therapist, Para-pros/instructional aides, School Nurses/ Health Assistants

SESSION TITLE: More than a Band-aid: Having Equitable Conversations with Children

DESCRTION: This session will provide an overview on how to promote inclusivity and build empathetic understanding with young children. The speaker will provide a fun example to teach equity to children, tools for staff to have equitable conversations with children, and time for collaboration with colleagues. Kathy Niedorowski has her Master's Degree in Social Work and works as the Birth to Five Community School Coordinator at West Chicago Elementary School District.

PRESENTER: Kathy Niedorowski

AUDIENCE: All Staff

SESSION TITLE: Moving from Other-Regulation to Self-Regulation through Play

DESCRTION: Moving from Other-Regulation to Self-Regulation through Play: Audience birth to three, preschool and kindergarten educators. Building the executive function component of Inhibitory control lays the foundation for self-regulation and availability for learning. Play is the vehicle where adults can support handing over regulation skills to the child.

PRESENTER: Julie Kallenbach

AUDIENCE: Teachers, Administrators, Para-pros/instructional aides

SESSION TITLE: Observing and Documenting Anytime, Anyplace

DESCRTION: Explore ways in which kindergarten teachers can observe and document student evidence. This session will cover ideas to use in a remote setting, in person, or hybrid models.

PRESENTER: Stephanie Plourde

AUDIENCE: Teachers, Kindergarten teachers

SESSION TITLE: Paraprofessionals: The What, Why and Who of Working with Young Learners

DESCRTION: The encouragement and support of paraprofessionals in the early years of school teaches students to learn responsibility, independence, and the love of learning. But what if students come to school with a wide variety of skills, abilities, and experiences, now what? What strategies do we use to support the students? Why do we teach a certain way and why do they act another way? Who are these students and who can show me the best ways to work with them? The ability to understand young learners and the characteristics they have will help you understand the support they need to grow and become independent thinkers.

PRESENTERS: Barb Layer and Wendy Barickman

AUDIENCE: Teachers, Administrators, Para-pros/instructional aides, Early Childhood Teachers and Paraprofessionals

SESSION TITLE: Pyramid Model Implementation: Adult and Child Wellness

DESCRTION: Our team will present on what Pyramid Implementation looks like in the remote world and in-person with new the new guidelines that need to be followed. What does this look like, how is it implemented, and what are some new strategies to personal wellness for our teachers, students, and families who are supporting the process.

PRESENTERS: Heather Santiemmo, Jennifer Billmeyer, Ashley Aparicio, Stephanie Woyna and Iliana Ochoa

AUDIENCE: All Staff

SESSION TITLE: Resources for Your Parents to Engage Their Child in Virtual Learning

DESCRTION: Virtual learning has now become a 'new' way to learn at home as schools continue to monitor the return to school safely. Parents are our partners more than ever and giving them some tools to work with will help parents and students. Understanding what remote learning is, why it is happening, and how parents can be involved and navigate the process will be an essential focus of this session. Introducing parents to "Pairing" which means establishing yourself as motivating will also be addressed. School staff "pairs" every day in school and it is integral to gaining instructional control, however parents may not understand why they need to do this or the best way to go about it. Working with challenging behaviors at home, social emotional learning, resources for visual supports, and more are included in this workshop. Resource sites will be shared and can be passed on to families to help support this time in their child's educational journey.

PRESENTERS: Tracy Kunce and Jenna Losch

AUDIENCE: Teachers, Speech and Language Pathologist, Social Workers, Early Childhood Teachers

SESSION TITLE: Scaffolded Writing for Preschool and Kindergarten

PRESENTER: Julie Kallenbach

AUDIENCE: Teachers, Administrators, Para-pros/instructional aides

SESSION TITLE: Seesaw: The Basics and Beyond

DESCRTION: Learner engagement is everything, regardless of the learning environment. Seesaw is a digital tool that engages learners through various means including text, audio, video, drawing, and Google/file integration. Seesaw provides a means for family communication through a blogging option and provides endless opportunities for creative assignments. Join in the fun and learn the basics and beyond!

PRESENTER: Melissa Guido

AUDIENCE: All Staff

SESSION TITLE: Tips for Making Math Meaningful for Preschoolers

DESCRTION: How can we help young children develop math concepts? This session will offer tips, activities, ideas, and strategies to assist children in developing a strong foundation in math skills in a fun and meaningful way. Many inexpensive and commercial materials will be shared. Participants can take away some ideas that can be used in their classrooms immediately.

PRESENTER: Sherial McKinney
