New York Times best selling author Damour pulls back the curtain on the teenage years and shows why your teen's erratic and confusing behavior is actually healthy, necessary, and natural. Dr. Damour draws on decades of experience and the latest research to reveal the seven developmental stages that turn adolescents into thriving adults. This presentation will explain what's going on, prepare parents for what's to come, and tell them when it's time to worry.

Damour will offer parents tips to deal with anxiety, substance use, moods, media, and more. When parents know what makes their teens tick, they can better enjoy the challenge, grow with their child, and form happier, healthier relationships.

Dr. Damour is the director of Laurel School's Center for Research on Girls, a senior advisor to the Schubert Center for Child Studies at Case Western Reserve University and a regular contributor at CBS News and The New York Times. She has held fellowships from Yale's Center in Child Development and Social Policy and the University of Michigan's Power Foundation and speaks internationally on education and child development. Her award winning book Untangled, praised as "mandatory reading", is filled with practical guidance for teens, their parents, teachers and advocates. REGISTER HERE.
